

ForbesLife

SPRING TRAVEL: WILD ZAMBEZI Plus: You're never too cool for Motorcycle school

NEW YORK, NY (April 2008) – This spring, ForbesLife whisks readers away to some of the most exotic, beautiful and trendy places on the map. Pulling tiger fish out of the Zambezi River in Africa is an angler's dream, as long as the crocs don't pull you in! Indulge in blood-orange sunsets behind a tableau of wading elephants in "A Good Place to Wet a Lion" (pg. 78).

Take a trip from London to Paris this season -- ForbesLife offers a three-step program for the perfect weekend (pg. 34). Take in the hip elements of Haymarket Hotel, with its 50 high-windowed suites in Central London, then hop on the newly updated Eurostar high-speed train and enjoy the scenery until you arrive in the City of Lights.

The Dominican Republic is not just a spring-break haven anymore! Punta Cana has luxury hotels that offer guests culinary excellence, world-renowned spas and golf courses that leave players truly challenged (pg. 40).

Also in this issue: Your spouse is mad, the kids are embarrassed and the midlife-crisis jokes are running rampant -- you bought the motorcycle of your dreams. Do you know how to ride it? Rider Edge teaches old and new riders how to keep the rubber side down (pg. 59).

Plus:

- The Odyssey – Touring Greece on $50,000 a day? It's worth a try (pg. 86).
- Passions – CEO Jim Goodnight brings high-tech teaching to his North Carolina academy (pg. 46).
- Wine – A supply of under-$25 wines makes your house a home (pg. 71).
- Golf – A brawny new putter and cool fairway kicks (pg. 43).

For more information please contact Helaina Rosenthal at hrosenthal@forbes.com or 212-367-2620